Lexikon des Mittelalters & International Encyclopaedia for the Middle Ages

The Lexikon des Mittelalters online (LexMA)

is an indispensable research tool for medievalists of all disciplines. Based upon the most important encyclopaedia in the world for medievalists (published in German between 1977 and 1999), LexMA's 36,700 signed articles written by 3,000 authors covers all aspects of medieval studies within the period 300 to 1500. Its geographical scope covers the whole of Europe, part of the Middle East, and parts of North Africa to document the roots of Western culture and those of its neighbours in the Byzantine, Arab and Jewish worlds.

Brepols Publishers have enhanced the data of the German printed edition through the inclusion of lemmata in English normalized to conform where possible to the Library of Congress subject classification and other standards, through the addition of an integral translation tool, and through the provision of links to the cumulative bibliographies, the International Medieval Bibliography and the Bibliographie de civilisation médiévale.

Normalization of lemmata into English and subject classification of index: Laura Napran (with guidance from Simon Forde)

an entirely new supplement to the Lexikon des Mittelalters (LexMA), is being produced under the joint auspices of the UCLA Center for Medieval and Renaissance Studies and Brepols Publishers; it will be made available at Brepolis, the Brepols site for online medieval encyclopedias, bibliographies, and databases. The chronological range of IEMA is 300-1500 CE, and it will cover all of Europe, North Africa, and the Middle East. IEMA will complement and fill in gaps in the coverage of the present Lexikon des Mittelalters (LexMA).

Bibliography

The Uighurs are among the earliest of the Turkic peoples. Tribes known by the name Uighur (Huihe in the very extensive Chinese sources) appear as subjects of the enormous nomadic Türk empire, which, with variations in the extent of actual power over time, ruled most of northeastern Central Asia, as far west as the Aral Sea, from 582 to 744. The Uighurs conquered the Türks and set up their own empire in 744, with its capital in Karabalgasun on the High Orkhon River in today's Mongolia. A major event of this period was Bögü Kaghan conversion to Manichaeism in 762 or 763 and his official adoption of this faith as the Uighur state religion. Chinese sources report that in 789 the kaghan requested his people be renamed Huihu in Chinese.
